

What Faith and Love Can Do

What Faith and Love Can Do invites the reader to journey with the author as he confronts his life's greatest challenges—the death of his wife, Sandy, from cancer and his simultaneous cancer diagnosis and treatment. After all, what hope is there for people who hear the word “cancer” or are taking their final steps to the end of life due to some other dreadful condition? Is faith in God and love for one another enough to see you through?

The author says “Journeying through crisis has had a profound effect on me. I discovered how to translate my faith into practice and I have seen my own faith develop and produce in me a maturity that I would not otherwise possess.”

The message to his readers is clear: faith in God, love for one another, and surprisingly, a sense of humor are the secrets to overcoming grief and loss.

Dan Cole, Tulsa, OK, is an experienced pastor and international missionary. His practical yet heartwarming writing style is captivating and memorable.
